CISCO CERTIFIED NETWORK PROFESSIONAL

What is CCNP?

CCNP is the Cisco Certified Network Professional certification. This certification is available for IT professionals with at least one year of experience in professional networking. A high school diploma or equivalent is also mandatory. The CCNP certification is intended for professionals seeking specialized training programs in implementing, maintaining, and planning Cisco's wide range of high-end network solution products. The CCNP certification curriculum consists of many different courses, which cover the basics of IT networking.

Why CCNP?

Having a Cisco Certified Network Professional (CCNP) certification validates your ability to implement and troubleshoot both LAN and WAN networks. In addition, you will be recognized as a person who can collaborate with specialists on issues related to voice, wireless, advanced security, and video solutions. CCNP certification is suitable for those with at least one year of experience in networking. Individuals who obtain the certification are known to possess a precious skill set that is required in enterprise roles such as network engineer, systems engineer, support engineer, network technician, and more. You will need to get CCNA certified before attempting for CCNP certification. Every company wants CCNP certified network experts to join their team, because these are the people that protect the company from all kinds of online threats. For a business, getting a CCNP certified security expert is certainly a game changing moment. Despite the fact that earning this certification is really difficult, if the candidate is hardworking and determined, nothing will come in between you and the success. While earning a CCNP certification is a confirmation that you have the right training, expertise, knowledge and commitment that is required, keep up with the latest certifications and training to prove that you have the eligibility for every aspect of the job.
